PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

Art as My Therapy

my creative journey

A MEMOIR · FIRST EDITION 2026

Art as My Therapy

My Creative Journey

Copyright © 2026 Mery Zakkak. All rights reserved.

No part of this book may be reproduced, stored or transmitted in any form or by any means without written permission from the author, except for brief quotations used in reviews.

Paintings by Mery Zakkak.
First edition, 2026.

A NOTE ABOUT THIS BOOK

This is a memoir. It shares the author's personal story of using creative expression to support her emotional wellbeing. It is not medical or psychological advice and is not a substitute for diagnosis or treatment by a qualified professional. If you are struggling, please contact a mental health professional, a trusted person, or your local emergency services.

Author Instagram: @MeryCreativeJourney
Paintings Instagram: @Paintings.ByMery

There's beauty
in creating something that wasn't there before...

Contents

THE STORY

1 When Art First Spoke to Me 5

2 The Journey That Wasn't Linear 7

3 Where Creativity Became Movement 9

4 When Art Became My Medicine 12

5 Traveling With My Art 15

6 Loneliness, Anxiety, and the Search for Warmth 17

7 Yarn, Knots, and Emotional Release 20

8 The Art That Held Me 22

9 What I Want You to Know 24

10 My Creative Peace 26

Pieces from the Studio 28

11 Every Morning, a New Color 30

YOUR TURN

My Story Ends Here. Yours Begins. 33

12 From Doubts to Affirmations 34

Try a Session With Me, Right Here 37

THE STUDIO

Products & Services 44

About the Author 45

A Life Painted with Purpose 46

Welcome to Your New Journey 47

CHAPTER ONE

When Art First Spoke to Me

Before I had the words, I had the colors.
They never once misunderstood me.

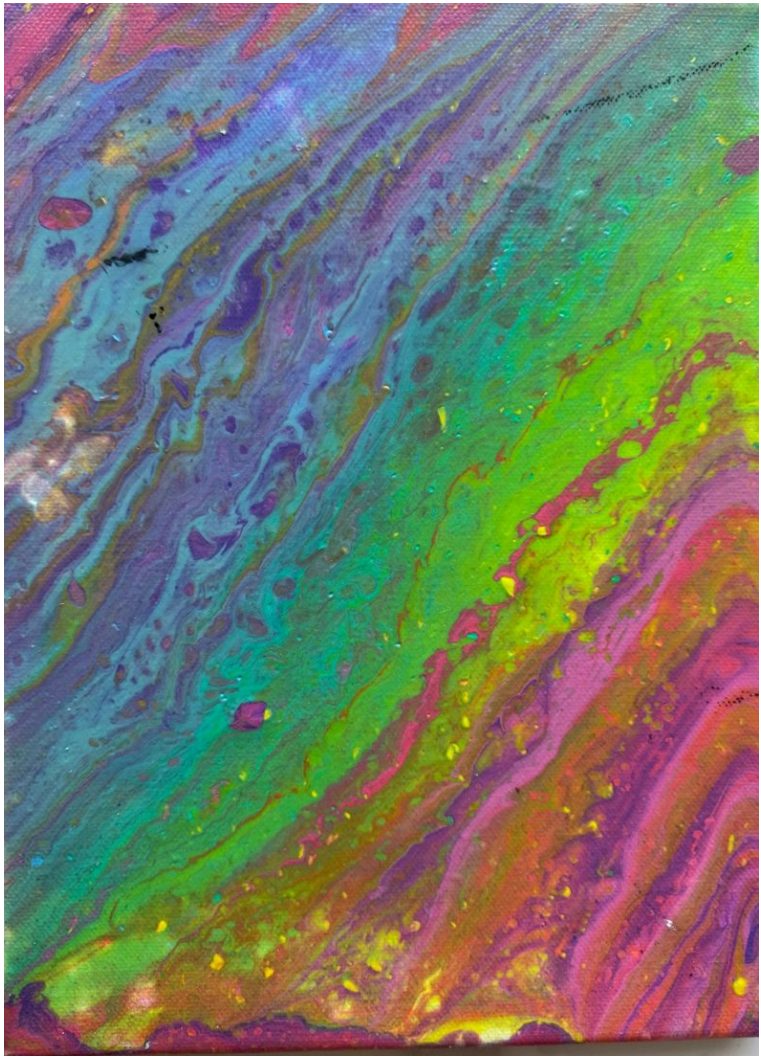

Art didn't enter my life loudly. It arrived the way a quiet guest does, and it stayed. My mother painted, and her vibrant brushstrokes were the first colors I ever knew. Our world was full of color and craft, and without anyone saying it out loud, I learned that art is more than decoration. It is a language of emotion, connection and storytelling.

At school, though, it was a subject nobody celebrated, a talent nobody quite understood. But something in me recognized it. Colors made sense when words didn't. Shapes said what I couldn't say out loud.

Maybe you remember it too: the doodles in the margins, the song you hummed without thinking, the thing your hands wanted to do before your mind could explain why.

I didn't know it yet, but art was already becoming my therapy.

And if, as you read this, you feel a similar pull, a small voice asking for a brush, a pencil, a melody, a moment, trust it. That's where healing begins.

Colors made sense when words didn't.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER TWO

The Journey That Wasn't Linear

You are allowed to grow in more than one direction.

There were two roads in front of me, and I was asked to walk them one at a time.

The first was graphic design. I studied it at university, learning grids and typefaces. The second was the road my heart had already chosen: makeup artistry. It waited inside me, patient and stubborn.

My mother asked me to finish my degree first, and she promised that afterwards she would stand beside me. So I finished. And she kept her promise. Four years later she sat beside me in makeup school, encouraging me, reminding me that dreams don't expire.

Then it happened. The colors that had lived on paper my whole life began to move. They left the page. They climbed onto faces.

It was the same language I had always spoken, only now my canvas was breathing. Paper had been my first surface. A face became my second. And even then, something deeper was happening.

Art was teaching me resilience.
Art was teaching me patience.
Art was teaching me how to express myself without needing permission.

If you are standing between what you "should" do and what you feel called to do, hear me: you do not have to choose one road forever. Creativity grows in the space between them.

Paper was my first surface. A face became my second.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER THREE

Where Creativity Became Movement

When home becomes uncertain, create something that can travel with you.

Back home, my life moved fast. Working in Lebanon's event industry was loud, bright and full of adrenaline, and I loved every second of it. I was a graphic designer at an event agency, creating constantly: designing, building, imagining. Every event was a small world I helped bring to life, and each one taught me what moves people, what makes them stop and look, and what they remember.

But somewhere in those years, something shifted. A new version of me was emerging, a woman who wanted more than to design for other people's visions. She was brave enough to say it out loud, and she was the one who supported me in launching my very first business: my accessories.

The crowded venues of our events became my stepping path. Between the lights, the stages and the crowds, I found a place where something of mine could finally be seen. What looked like a busy event floor was, to me, the first road toward something that was entirely mine. I was building with my own hands, and for the first time it felt like it belonged to me.

And then everything I knew began to shake. When the situation in Lebanon collapsed, I had to leave.

> Leaving home wasn't just a physical move.
> It was an emotional fracture.

Some of you know this feeling. A suitcase half packed, a heart half left behind. Maybe it wasn't a country you left. Maybe it was a job, a relationship, a version of your life that ended before you were ready. Whatever it was, that moment asks the same question: what do I hold on to now?

My answer arrived quietly. Not as a plan, not as a formal practice, but as a survival instinct. I reached for color. If home could no longer stay in one place, I needed something that could travel with me.

That small, stubborn instinct is the reason I do what I do today. In my sessions, we begin exactly there, with whatever you are carrying, and a way to give it color.

The first road toward something that was entirely mine.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER FOUR

When Art Became My Medicine

Healing doesn't always arrive loudly.
Sometimes it arrives as a brush in your hand.

Moving to the UAE meant starting over. I kept working in events, but now I was doing it far from home, far from my family, and far from the people who knew my story. The 9 to 6 routine felt heavy. I wasn't failing. I was suffocating.

I was alone in a new country, struggling emotionally in ways I didn't know how to explain. The days were full of work, but the evenings were quiet. Too quiet. There was no one to tell, and no words that felt big enough anyway.

So I started exploring again: piano, makeup, painting, drawing. I was reaching for anything that might help me breathe.

And slowly, in that silence, the canvas began to answer. I wasn't following a plan. I didn't have a name for what I was doing. I was simply putting what I felt onto a canvas, because it was the one thing that answered when I called.

Painting became my lifeline. My paintings held the emotions I couldn't explain. They carried the words people didn't understand. They became the safe place I couldn't find anywhere else.

Every brushstroke felt like a breath.
Every color felt like a release.
Every finished piece felt like a step forward.

This, I think, is the heart of it: not perfection, not talent, not technique.

Just expression.
Just release.
Just truth.

If you have ever sat in a room full of people and felt completely alone, you know exactly what I mean. And if you are in a season like that right now, with a full calendar, quiet evenings and a heart that has no one to tell, I want you to know there is a way through that does not need words. It begins with one color. In my sessions, that is exactly where we start: no pressure to explain, only permission to begin.

I didn't know it yet, but I was only at the beginning, and my brush had many more places to go.

Every brushstroke felt like a breath.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER FIVE

Traveling With My Art

Every place I painted taught me something about the person holding the brush.

During my travels, my sketchbook became my companion. I painted airports, mountains, cafés, strangers, memories.

The road took me through the UAE and Lebanon, Oman and Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Bulgaria, Bosnia and Turkey, and more. Every country gave me a different light and a different silence to paint inside.

UAE • LEBANON • OMAN • JORDAN • KSA • BULGARIA • BOSNIA • TURKEY • ARMENIA • AND MORE

But what I was really painting was myself: the parts I was trying to understand, the parts I was trying to heal.

And then came Armenia. Standing in its nature, I felt something I thought I had lost: the love feeling, a quiet belonging to something bigger than my loneliness. It found me again there.

Art traveled with me when people couldn't.
It listened when no one else did.
It held me together when everything else felt unstable.

I still believe in the small notebook. If you have ever felt alone in a crowded place, draw a line, a shape, a color, and let your emotions move somewhere outside your body.

Even a bottle can hold a feeling.

PAINTED BOTTLE BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER SIX

Loneliness, Anxiety, and the Search for Warmth

Christmas is not a date on the calendar. It is the feeling of being held.

Living abroad brought disappointment, abandonment, and a constant hum of anxiety.

I didn't feel safe.
I didn't feel understood.
I didn't feel held.

And then there is Christmas, the most beautiful time of the year for me. It is the season when everything softens: the lights, the music, the warmth of a kitchen full of people, the feeling that for a few days the whole world agrees to slow down and be kind. Being far from home at Christmas made my loneliness louder than ever. If a season, a song or a smell has ever done that to you, you are not the only one sitting at that table.

But in the middle of that loneliness, my memory did something kind. It took me by the hand and walked me back.

Come with me, down memory lane. I am seven years old. It is Christmas, and my aunt has placed a gift in my hands: a latch hook horse, a piece I have to complete by hand, knot by knot, color by color. It wasn't just a craft. It was a memory in the making.

I am sitting in my grandmother's house. There is the warmth of my grandfather's tea, the quiet presence of my mother, and winter evenings when the cold stays outside and love stays inside. I feel held, safe, understood.

Then the memory lets go of my hand, and I am a grown woman again, far from home. But something has changed. That Christmas, I wasn't alone at all. I was sitting inside every Christmas I had ever loved.

Replicating these moments makes me feel the warmth of my family around me again.

That little horse became a portal,
a doorway back to myself.

It wasn't just a craft. It was a memory in the making.

THE LATCH HOOK HORSE

CHAPTER SEVEN

Yarn, Knots, and Emotional Release

One stitch at a time, I found my way back to myself.

That memory opened a door. I began to crochet and knit, and every stitch felt like reconnecting with a part of myself I thought I had lost. Handmade work became another kind of refuge: a rhythm, a meditation, a way to feel warmth when life felt cold.

And then something beautiful happened. I started imitating hugs with the blankets I make. Each one became a hug I could send out into the world, a hug that says:

"I love you, and I hope this keeps you warm."

If you have ever felt disconnected, try making something with your hands. It doesn't matter what. The act of making is healing.

“I love you, and I hope this keeps you warm.”

HANDMADE BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER EIGHT

The Art That Held Me

> Art never asked me to be strong. It only asked me to be honest.

The anxiety didn't disappear with the horse, and neither did the loneliness. There were still nights when I felt unsafe, unseen, and far from anyone who could hold me.

On those nights I went back to my art, to whatever was within reach: paint, a pencil, a ball of yarn.

My colors held me.
My hands held me.
My art held me.

It became the place where I could pour everything: fear, sadness, confusion, hope. It helped me move forward when I didn't know how.

This is why I want to tell you, yes, you, that this was never about being an artist. It's about being human. It's about giving your emotions a place to land.

My colors held me. My hands held me. My art held me.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER NINE

What I Want You to Know

You don't have to be an artist to be the creator of your own healing.

If you're reading this, maybe you are carrying something heavy. Maybe you are trying to heal something you can't explain. Maybe you are searching for a way to breathe again.

I can only tell you what art did for me. It gave me a place to put the feelings I had no words for. It eased my anxiety through movement and color. It brought me back to myself after long stretches of loneliness. It taught me, quietly, how to stand up again. It found meaning in moments that felt empty.

You don't need to be good at it. You don't need to show anyone. You don't need to explain.

Just start.

That is exactly how my sessions begin. There is no talent to prove and nothing to get right. There is a table, some color, a little time, and someone to walk beside you while you find your own way back to yourself. If you feel ready for that, I would love to meet you there.

> And if what you are carrying feels too heavy to hold alone, please reach out to a qualified professional or someone you trust. Art can walk beside that support. It cannot replace it.

Just start.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER TEN

My Creative Peace

Peace is not the absence of storms. It is a place you learn to return to.

My journey taught me that creativity isn't a hobby. It's a lifeline. I used to think peace meant the storm had ended. Now I think peace is somewhere you learn to return to, again and again, with a brush or a needle or a ball of yarn in your hands.

Art didn't erase my sadness, but it helped me understand it.
It didn't remove my anxiety, but it helped me soothe it.
It didn't fix my life, but it helped me rebuild it.

If art helped me move forward, maybe it can help you too.

Your emotions deserve a place to land.
Your story deserves color.
Your healing deserves space.

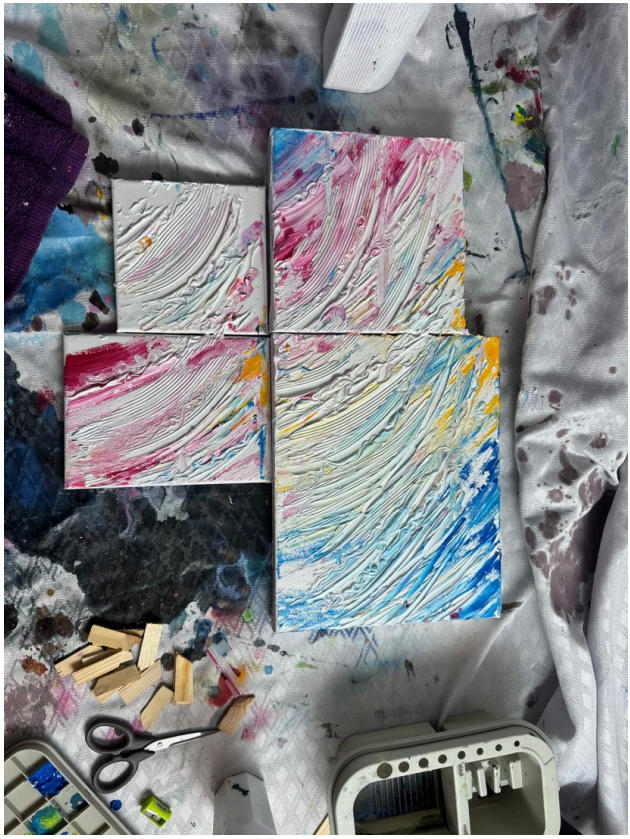

Peace is a place you learn to return to.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

THE PAINTINGS

Ancestors Love

WATCH IT COME TO LIFE

This painting has a story of its own. Scan the code to watch it on YouTube.

youtube.com/watch?v=Ia_1yu6pEoE

MORE FROM THE STUDIO

A Collage of Colors

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Every Morning, a New Color

A new year does not make a new you. A new honesty does.

Every morning, I remind myself that there is always a new day, always a new color, and always a new version of me waiting to be created.

That feeling became the very first workshop I created in this creative journey. Everything that came after began here.

We don't begin with resolutions. We begin with honesty.

First, we draw the Wheel of Life, a circle divided into the areas that make up our days. We color in how full each one feels right now. No judging. Just seeing.

Then comes my favorite part. With scissors, glue, magazines, paper and color, each person turns what they discovered into a collage vision board, a picture of the life they are ready to grow into. Not a perfect plan. A visible hope.

People arrive carrying a list of what's missing, and leave holding a picture of what's possible. They leave with something more, too: a like-minded community to grow alongside.

And maybe today is the day you pick up your first brush, your first pencil, your first pair of scissors, your first piece of yarn, your first creative breath.

THE FIRST WORKSHOP

New Year, New You

A Vision Board Journey

A mindfulness-based creative workshop for clarity, intention and transformation

It's never too late to begin again. Every day is a new day to choose a new direction, embrace growth, and create the future you envision.

Step into a transformative experience designed to help you reflect on the year behind you and consciously create the one ahead.

This immersive experience invites participants to reflect, reset and realign through the power of mindful creativity. Rooted in four pillars, Inspire, Imagine, Create and Evolve, it blends breathwork, emotional exploration and artistic expression, so that the vision board each person makes is not just decorative, but deeply intentional.

INSPIRE
We begin by grounding into presence.

IMAGINE
We explore our inner world through guided prompts and imagery.

CREATE
With clarity and emotional alignment, we move into hands-on creation using collage, paint and personal symbolism.

EVOLVE
We reflect on how to bring the vision into daily life.

Express your feelings and thoughts through art.

BOOK IT AS A PRIVATE SESSION, WHENEVER YOU ARE READY.

FOR HOSTS AND COMMUNITIES

- Enhances emotional wellbeing and creativity
- Encourages goal-setting and personal growth
- Creates a memorable, high-impact experience
- Appeals to diverse audiences across age and background

There is always a new color.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

A NOTE BEFORE YOU TURN THE PAGE

My story ends here. Yours begins.

Page by page, you have walked beside me through leaving, loneliness, color and coming home. This is where I put down my pen and place it in your hand.

From here on, you are not the reader. You are the author. The pages ahead are not homework. They are the same gentle exercises I use in my private sessions, made to be written in, colored on and returned to.

Your story is already waiting. All it needs is a first line.

TURN THE PAGE AND BEGIN

CHAPTER TWELVE

From Doubts to Affirmations

Your doubts are only unfinished sentences. You get to choose how they end.

From this page onwards, the exercises in this book are a sample of how we work together in my sessions. Every session follows the same gentle rhythm: we arrive, we name what feels heavy, we give it color, and we leave lighter. Try them on your own first, with a pen and a quiet corner. And when you are ready for company, I would love to walk you through them.

Every creative person I meet carries the same quiet voice: I'm not good enough. It's too late. Who am I to try? I carry it too. I've learned that I can't always silence it, but I can transform it.

This is the ritual I come back to, and the one I share with the people I guide. All you need is a pen, a piece of paper and a few quiet minutes.

GATHER YOURSELF. Find a quiet corner. Choose one color that feels like you today. Take three slow breaths.

NAME THE DOUBT. Write it exactly as it speaks to you: "I'm not creative enough." Don't soften it. Once it's on paper, it loses some of its volume.

THANK IT. Write underneath: "Thank you for trying to protect me." Most doubts are just fear in disguise.

TURN IT AROUND. Ask yourself what you would say to someone you love. Then rewrite the sentence in the present tense, in your own voice: "I am creative. I belong here."

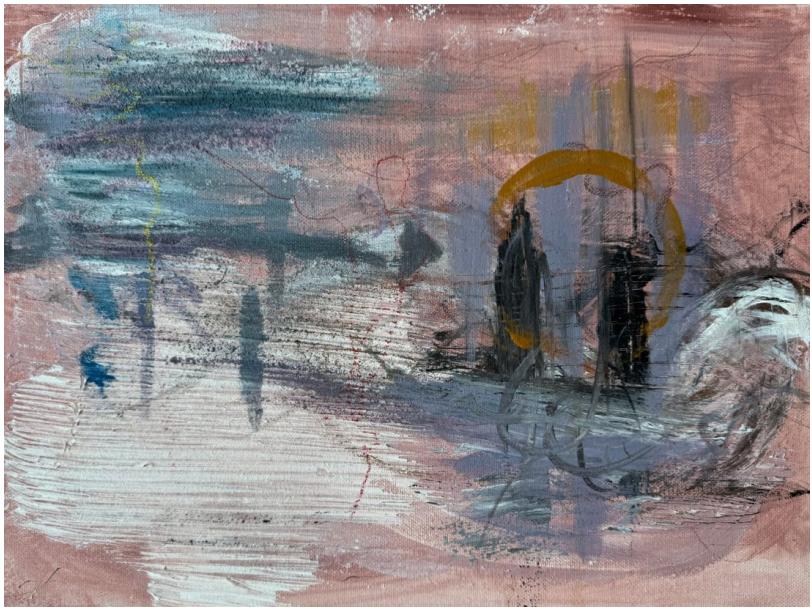

MAKE IT VISIBLE. Write your new sentence in your chosen color. Frame it with shapes, stitch it, paint it, collage it, in any medium you love. Fold or tear the old doubt, and let it go.

SPEAK IT. Place a hand on your heart and read your affirmation out loud. Repeat it every morning for seven days, and watch which one starts to feel true.

Doubts are visitors.
Affirmations are the home you build.

If you would like company on this road, I have a step by step guide for twelve weeks that will help you walk it, one small ritual at a time.

This isn't a transformation; it's a homecoming.

I am creative. I belong here.

PAINTINGS BY MERY ZAKKAK

YOUR SESSION PREVIEW

Try One of My Sessions, Right Here

You have read my story. These next pages give you a real taste of what happens when we sit down together.

Everything I have shared with you grew out of one simple practice: giving a feeling somewhere to go. In my sessions, that is all we do. There is no talent to prove and nothing to get right.

So instead of only telling you how it works, I wanted you to feel it. The pages that follow are a sample of a real session: we start by looking at your life as a whole, we meet the doubts that hold us back, we let our emotions out, we come home to ourselves, and we pause to notice what stayed with us.

Try them on your own, with a pen, some colors and a quiet corner. Go slowly. Skip what does not feel right. And if you would like company, I would love to walk you through them in a private session, whenever you are ready. Message me on Instagram, @MeryCreativeJourney.

1. The Wheel of Life. See your life as a whole and notice what needs care.
2. From Doubt to Affirmation. Meet the voice that holds you back and answer it kindly.
3. Let It Out. Give what you are carrying a color, a shape and a place to land.
4. Come Home. Return to the memories and words that make you feel held.
5. What Stayed With Me. Pause, look at what you made, and carry one thing forward.

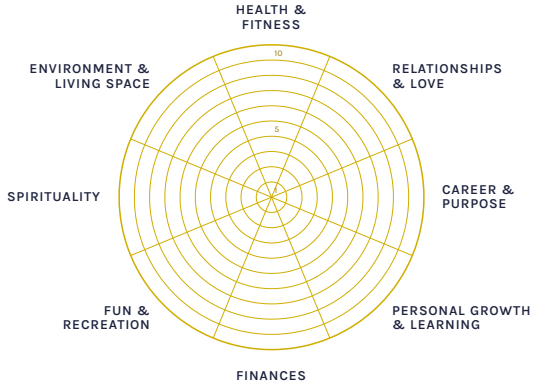

SESSION SAMPLE · THE WHEEL OF LIFE

Discover Your Journey with the Wheel of Life

A taste of how we work in my sessions. A visual exercise that divides your life into key areas, to help you gain clarity and take one small step toward a more fulfilling life.

HOW TO DO IT

Rate each area from 1 (very dissatisfied) to 10 (very satisfied). Then color that segment from the center outward, up to the number you rated. Rated Health & Fitness a 7? Color the first 7 rings of that section. Use a different color for each area.

THIS EXERCISE IS PART OF MY WORKSHOP

New Year, New You: A Vision Board Journey. No fixed dates: book it as a private session whenever you are ready.

YOUR TURN

Create your own Wheel of Life and send it to me on Instagram, @MeryCreativeJourney. I'll review it and share personalized tips to support your growth.

SESSION SAMPLE · YOUR RITUAL PAGE

From Doubt to Affirmation

Write it. Thank it. Turn it around. Make it visible.

THE DOUBT I AM RELEASING

THE AFFIRMATION I CHOOSE

THE DOUBT I AM RELEASING

THE AFFIRMATION I CHOOSE

THE DOUBT I AM RELEASING

THE AFFIRMATION I CHOOSE

SESSION SAMPLE · EMOTIONAL RELEASE

Let It Out

There are no wrong answers here. Breathe, take your time, and let your hand go first.

1. What am I carrying today? Name it in one word, then write it big across the box below.
2. If this feeling were a color, which one would it be? Paint, scribble or color a patch of it.
3. Where do I feel it in my body? Draw its shape, its weight, its edges.
4. What would I say to it if it could hear me? Write it as a sentence, then let it be messy.
5. Sixty seconds, no lifting the pen. Set a timer and scribble. What did your hand want to say?

DRAW IT HERE

Come Home

Remember: you are never alone. You are always with yourself.

1. Write a letter to the feeling you most want to release. Begin with "Dear..." and say everything.
2. What do I need to hear right now? Write it the way a friend who loves you would say it.
3. Which memory makes me feel held? Capture one detail: a smell, a sound, a warm cup of tea.
4. What is one small thing I can make with my hands today? A line, a stitch, a collage, a candle.
5. Finish these sentences. Today I am letting go of... Today I am choosing...

SESSION SAMPLE · AFTER THE SESSION

What Stayed With Me

At the end of every session we pause and look at what we made. Take a quiet minute and do the same.

1. What did I notice about myself today? One thing, however small.
2. What surprised me? A color, a word, a feeling that showed up uninvited.
3. What do I want to carry into this week? Write it as a sentence you can read tomorrow morning.
4. What would I like to explore next? A new color, a new memory, a new question.

YOUR SPACE

Your Own Story

Write, doodle, paste, stitch or scribble. This page is yours.

Products & Services

Everything in this book grew from the same place, a need to give feelings somewhere to go. These are the corners of my creative world, and you are welcome in every one of them.

PRODUCTS

Paintings

Original paintings born from real emotion, pieces made to hold a feeling and bring it home. @Paintings.ByMery

Memory

Handmade crochet and knitted pieces, including blankets, made stitch by stitch to carry warmth and memory.

Accessory

Handmade accessories, the very first business I launched, and still close to my heart.

SERVICES

MeryCreativeEvents

Event design and creative direction, shaped by years behind the scenes in Lebanon and the UAE.

MeryCreativeJourney

Creative mentoring, one-on-one sessions, small groups and workshops, plus the 90-day creative transformation workbook. @MeryCreativeJourney

To book a session, a workshop or an event, message me on Instagram, @MeryCreativeJourney. I would love to hear your story.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Mery Zakkak

"Creativity is not a destination. It's a way of living."

Graphic designer. Painter. Makeup artist. Handmade artist. Event creator. With over 16 years of experience, Mery has turned her childhood love for art into a soulful career that spans continents, cultures and mediums. It began with her mother's vibrant brushstrokes, and it grew into one belief: art and wellness belong together.

Painting	A place for the feelings that have no words.
Makeup	The art of revealing what is already beautiful.
Handmade candles	A gentle glow and a small ritual of calm.
Knitting & crochet	Stitch by stitch, a meditation that carries warmth.
Dance	Rhythm that moves emotion through the body.
Reading	Quiet joy, and a pause to breathe.
Design & events	Storytelling that brings people together.

Different crafts, one purpose: to help people feel, heal and come home to themselves.

MORE ABOUT MERY

A Life Painted with Purpose

A Career of Color and Connection

From Beirut to Abu Dhabi, Mery has led design projects and events across the UAE, Iraq, Oman, Jordan, Portugal, Saudi Arabia, Cape Town, Qatar and more. Her work blends cultural sensitivity with aesthetic depth, always guided by intention and heart.

MeryCreativeJourney: Where Creativity Finds Its Soul

Outside the realm of professional design and event creation, Mery nurtures a deeply personal space called MeryCreativeJourney, a sanctuary where creativity breathes, heals and evolves. Each craft is more than a hobby. It is a ritual, a way to reconnect with the self, honor emotion, and celebrate the beauty of imperfection.

Here, Mery invites others to explore their own stories, embrace the handmade, and rediscover the joy of slow, intentional creation. It is a space where every thread, flicker and brushstroke carries meaning.

Painting with Purpose

Mery's paintings reflect her belief in mindful creation. Her art is slow, intentional and deeply personal, an invitation to pause, feel and reconnect. Through her workshops and visual storytelling, she helps others rediscover their inner artist and embrace the beauty of imperfection. She also hosts fun workshops for adults and kids, for all occasions and celebrations.

Looking Ahead

Mery's vision is to build a global community of soulful makers: people who create with heart, live with intention, and celebrate their stories through art. Her workshops and collaborations are designed to spark joy, healing and connection.

Colorful. Warm. Honest. Handmade. Hopeful.

ORIGINAL PAINTINGS

Bring a feeling home

Pieces born from real emotion, made to hold a feeling. Scan to see the paintings on Instagram, @Paintings.ByMery

YOUR TURN

Welcome to Your New Journey!

YOUR STEPS TO CREATIVITY

Unlock your creativity with each step you take. Whether you're planning unforgettable events, crafting stunning designs, exploring handmade projects, or bringing your visions to life through painting, your journey begins with inspiration.

For the Crochet Beginner Workshop, I'm currently offering the courses online so that everyone can benefit, no matter where they are. For in-person classes, I'm based in the UAE, and we can book sessions according to availability.

1. Pick up anything: a pencil, a brush, a ball of yarn.
2. Make one mark today. Date it. Book your discovery call.
3. Message me on Instagram and we'll find the session that fits you.

MESSAGE ME ON INSTAGRAM

@MeryCreativeJourney

Scan to visit MeryCreativeJourney

Join me in this journey, and let's inspire one another in our vibrant community. I can't wait to hear about your creative passions. What are you working on?

WHAT YOU'LL FIND HERE

What You Take Home

1. Creative workshops for adults and kids
   Mindful sessions like New Year, New You: A Vision Board Journey, plus fun workshops for every occasion and celebration.

2. The Crochet Beginner Workshop
   Online, so you can join from anywhere. In-person classes in the UAE, booked around your availability.

3. Your Wheel of Life, reviewed
   Send me your completed wheel and receive personalized tips to support your growth.

4. A 12-week step by step guide
   A gentle, structured path to walk, one small ritual at a time.

5. The 90-day creative transformation workbook
   A guided journey back to your creative self, from first line to finished piece.

6. One-on-one sessions and small groups
   Creative mentoring shaped around you and the story you want to tell.

7. A like-minded community
   A vibrant circle of soulful makers who inspire one another.

JOIN OUR COMMUNITY

Let's start the Journey!

Scan to join the MeryCreativeJourney WhatsApp group

"When you lose track of your purpose, remember that every day's purpose is to be happy."

With love,

MERY

A MEMOIR

Before I had the words, I had the colors.

When life carried Mery Zakkak from Lebanon to the UAE, she found herself far from home, often alone, and struggling in ways she couldn't explain. Words weren't big enough. Paint was.

From canvases made in quiet evenings to a latch hook horse that carried her back to every Christmas she had ever loved, this memoir follows the small, handmade things that held her together, and the colors that helped her find her way back to herself.

A story of leaving, of loneliness, and of learning that your emotions deserve a place to land.

Visit MeryCreativeJourney

Scan to follow the journey on Instagram, @MeryCreativeJourney

MERY ZAKKAK

Graphic designer, painter, makeup artist, handmade artist and event creator, with over 16 years of experience. Creative mentor behind MeryCreativeJourney.